This manual was created for the International Association of Operative Millers (IAOM) membership by the IAOM Food Protection Committee in response to the new sanitary transport regulations by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration (FDA). Its purpose is to provide a summary of best practices to achieve compliance with FDA regulations and the quality expectations of milling industry customers.

The manual was written by members of IAOM's Food Protection Committee who are practical experts in food safety, quality and transportation, with additional input from independent bulk transportation companies. Although this manual focuses on the transport of milled grain products, which are non-ready to eat, this manual has applicability to other dry bulk food ingredients.

The IAOM Bulk Trailer Sanitary Transport Best Practice Manual is divided into nine sections.
