WHAT IS IAOM?

IAOM is the International Association of Operative Millers, a professional society for grain milling industry professionals. Our members work hard every day to make sure the food you eat is safe and healthy. The association helps them do their jobs better.

Founded in 1896, IAOM is an international organization of grain millers and allied trades representatives devoted to the advancement of education and training in the grain milling industries.

With 14 districts and regions around the world, IAOM provides an international forum for networking; the exchange of ideas, technical and educational opportunities; and the discovery of new products and services.

This manual was created for the International Association of Operative Millers (IAOM) membership by the IAOM Food Protection Committee in response to the new sanitary transport regulations by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration (FDA). Its purpose is to provide a summary of best practices to achieve compliance with FDA regulations and the quality expectations of milling industry customers.

The manual was written by members of IAOM's Food Protection Committee who are practical experts in food safety, quality and transportation, with additional input from independent bulk transportation companies. Although this manual focuses on grain products, which are non-ready to eat, this manual has applicability to other dry
